GIRL'S WORDS MAY SEND FATHER TO GALLOWS.
Net of Evidence Closing Tightly About Jaile Casa Verdugo Suspect.

Frightful Nightmare of a Dressmaker Linked with the Strange Fascination of Scene of Slaying for Alleged Murderer Lands Latter Behind Bars—Daughter's Story Leaves No Doubt in Officers' Minds.

THROUGH the agency of a dressmaker's dream, and the strange incident which appears to have taken him to the scene of the killing after the dead was done, Louis A. Larson, a barber, husband of the woman whose battered body was found near Casa Verdugo last Sunday, is in the County Jail, and about him Sheriff Hammel has woven a net of evidence which points from every angle to him as the slayer. Larson has all but confessed under the weight of circumstantial evidence that seems overpowering. He was arrested late yesterday afternoon by deputy sheriffs after his wife's remains had been identified at the morgue, and in the few hours that followed his capture he told conflicting stories that drew the finger of suspicion closer to him. This suspicion, aided by the damning statements of his daughter made to the Sheriff, warrant the belief of the Sheriff's force that the mystery of the Casa Verdugo hills has been cleared up.

The old axiom that "murder will out" bears upon the killing with peculiar force. Mrs. Mary Garshweller, a dressmaker in Hill street, near Tenth, read in the papers Monday morning of the discovery of the dying unknown woman in the hills near Glendale. The woman had been fatally beaten with a beer bottle. Her head, face and neck were horribly mutilated and her body bruised. Her dying groans attracted the attention of J. H. Burns of No. 1111 San Pedro street, and Miss Fannie McClellan, who tried to resuscitate the dying woman. The woman died and there was nothing by which to identify her. All these things made a deep impression upon the mind of Mrs. Garshweller.

STORY OF THE DISCOVERY.
On Monday morning, after she had laid aside her paper, she looked for Mary Larson, who was to come and sew for her. Presently Luella Larson, the 16-year-old daughter of Mrs. Larson, arrived at Mrs. Garshweller's residence to explain that her mother had left on Sunday for San Francisco.

"She went rather suddenly, didn't she?" asked Mrs. Garshweller. "Yes, and I didn't believe it at first, but papa said she did, and last night she didn't come home." All day long the strange features of the Casa Verdugo crime lurked in the dressmaker's brain, and Monday night she dreamed of the murder. Her dream linked the sudden disappearance of Mrs. Larson with the unidentified body found in the hills. In the morning the recurring horror of the dream came back to her, and she labored under it Tuesday and Wednesday. Yesterday, after the body had been brought from Glendale to the morgue of J. D. Button, No. 470 North Main street, Mrs. Garshweller telephoned to the Sheriff's office. She had a suspicion that Mrs. Larson had not gone to San Francisco and told the Sheriff's force that she might identify the woman. The Sheriff sent an automobile to Mrs. Garshweller's residence. Deputy Sheriff Gillis escorted the woman to the Button morgue, and she at once identified the dead woman as Mrs. Larson.

The lifting veil of mystery found the Sheriff's office at the Button morgue, and here a coincidence arose, for on Wednesday afternoon there had been found on the scene of the murder a receipt, which read as follows: "Receipt of Mr. Larson fifty ($5) dollars. A. Hickson."

STRANGE COINCIDENCE.
This receipt had been torn into bits and thrown under a bush near the scene of the killing. It was found by Nick Harris, a private detective, but he attached no significance to it, as it evidently had been left at the scene of the crime after the deputy sheriffs, detectives and citizens had combed the ground and the bushes for days following the murder. Mrs. Garshweller identified the murdered woman as Mrs. Larson, the name of Larson on the fragmentary receipt became at once of vital importance. The linking of the two formed the first real evidence of the identity of the slayer.

LARSON'S VERSION.
Larson told the Sheriff a strange story, after his arrest yesterday afternoon at the barber shop, No. 111 East First street. He said that for several Sundays he and his wife had been going out to look for houses, as they had saved a little money and were about to buy a home, paying a sum down and arranging for the remainder as rent. He said that last Sunday he and his wife left home in the morning, but that she changed her mind about going house-hunting and had gone to San Francisco. He said they had decided to part, and "I kissed her good-by at Sixth and Spring streets," he said, "and have not seen her since." Larson was taken from the County Jail to the morgue where he was shown the body of his wife. He staggered, his knees shook, and there was a wild look about his eyes. "That's her," he said, simply. "Luella Larson, daughter of the slain woman, told a damaging story of the disappearance of her mother."

BOY INVENTS OCELLAPHONE.

Polytechnic High School Student Perfects Telephone Which Smashes Positive-Negative Theory. The ocellaphone, invented by Earl Hanson, a 17-year-old Polytechnic High School student, and demonstrated before a perplexed assemblage of electrical experts last night, promises to revolutionize the telephone systems of the world by doing away with half of the billions of miles of copper wire now necessary. Two wires will be replaced by one. Several hundred interested persons also saw Hanson prove his theory that the human body is a better conductor of electrical energy than wire, when a conversation whispered at one end of a line composed of twenty-three persons, all holding hands, was plainly heard in another part of the Y.M.C. Hall at No. 1114 South Spring street. The ocellaphone smashes all theories of electricity, for, until Hanson's demonstration last night, it was not believed possible to produce a sound-carrier of this kind without both positive and negative wires.

STRIKE NEAT BALANCE FOR NEW CAR SERVICE.

All-Day Conference Between Officials and Residents and Merchants Results in Agreement—Same Mileage Out West Seventh and Over East, but Better Schedules—Twelve More Broadway Cars Hourly.

A SOLUTION of the problem of bettering car service to the growing residence districts without materially increasing the number of cars passing through the business district, the Los Angeles Railway Corporation will submit a car-rerouting schedule to the Board of Public Utilities today that not only involves the rearranging of the corporation's entire operating map, but the rearranging of no less than 122 car schedules. Though the railway has been working on a tentative system of car-rerouting for more than a year, the schedule to be submitted today had its real birth yesterday in conferences between company officials, merchants and residents of the districts to be materially affected by the proposed changes in car service.

THE NEW PLAN.
In brief, the scheduled changes are as follows:
Arcade and West Sixth-street line, to be abandoned.
First and Sixth-street loop line, Sixth street-end, to be extended by new connection at Sixth and Alvarado and cars operated thence, via Sixth, Gramercy, Third and Plymouth streets to Melrose avenue.
Boyle Heights and West Seventh-street line, routing same as at present, except that Heliotrope drive cars will be diverted to Western-avenue line, thus giving a two and one-half-minute service on this line during rush hours.
Stephenson-avenue line, to be discontinued west of Spring on Seventh and a new line created, to be known as Heliotrope-drive line, operating from Melrose and Normandie to Simini Baths, then south on Vermont-avenue to Sixth, thence via Commonwealth, Wilshire, Hoover, Broadway, and Second to Spring, south on that street to Fourth, then west to Broadway and so into the chain again.
West Eighth-street line, now operating on Sixth, between Commonwealth and Ardmore, to be changed to operate on Commonwealth from Sixth to First street and Virgil avenue.
Arcade and La Salle line, cars formerly operated from La Salle and Western to Fifth and San Pedro to be operated through to Arcade Station, via Fifth.
East Seventh and Santa Fe station line, to turn back at Seventh and Spring and continue on Spring to Fifth, and thence on Fifth to Arcade Station.

INCREASED SERVICE.
Though there is no increase in mileage by the proposed system, it is planned to increase the service on the affected lines as business warrants. Most important of all, the districts north of Wilshire boulevard and to the west of the business district will get one more car line and consequently more frequent car service.

Providing the Board of Public Utilities sanctions the proposed changes, the Los Angeles Railway Corporation will begin the work at once of rearranging schedules.

"It will take us at least two months to get everything lined up for the change," stated Assistant General Manager Henderson of the railway corporation yesterday.

ALL-DAY CONFERENCE.
It required nearly the entire day yesterday for Henderson and Superintendent Lewis of the corporation to work out the changes in co-operation with property owners and residents of the affected districts. The Broadway merchants, protesting against any system by which the number of cars on that line would be decreased, had their conference with the railway corporation officials in the morning. During the afternoon committees from the Wilshire Improvement Club and from the territory bounded by Vermont avenue, Sixth and Rampart streets, were in consultation with the street car men.

On being assured that the new system would not only mean no diminution in the number of cars on Broadway, but an addition of twelve more cars an hour during the rush period, the committee representing the Broadway merchants gave the new plan its approval.

Those at this meeting were: Miss B. Gregory, secretary Civic Center Association; Frank M. Coulter, president

Louis A. Larson, the East First-street barber, who was arrested yesterday afternoon charged with the killing of his wife, the victim of last Sunday's tragedy at Casa Verdugo.

FOR NINE DAYS UNCONSCIOUS.

VON DER LOHE CASE PUZZLE TO PHYSICIANS.

Veteran Superintendent of Rose-dale Cemetery Falls Five Feet from Elevator and Seems Go a Week Later—X-Ray and Apoplexy Diagnosis Fail to Explain Reason.

With the recovery of its subject from a period of unconsciousness covering nine days and the beginning of his convalescence, one of the most unusual cases in local medical history was made public yesterday by the family of J. H. C. von der Lohe, for the past thirty years superintendent of Rose-dale Cemetery and resident at No. 1811 West Washington street. More than two weeks ago Von der Lohe fell from an elevator platform in the new crematory building and was apparently but slightly injured. Six days after the accident, and while apparently recovering, he lapsed quite suddenly into unconsciousness and despite the best efforts of two physicians remained in that condition for nine days and nights. Then, with seemingly but little more reason for it, his senses returned and he was undoubtedly recovered.

Von der Lohe himself has no distinct recollection of the manner in which he met with his strange accident. He was showing William H. Walker, Jr., treasurer of the cemetery association, over the new crematory and started to show the official

EAGER FINGERS ITCHING TO FILE ON FINE LAND.

Homesteaders Mystified by Uncertain Rulings of Interior Department—Fund to Fight Is Raised by Disappointed Ones—Local Office at Sea but Follows the Orders—Administration Puzzle.

THE DEPARTMENT of the Interior is in a bad tangle regarding the opening for entry of 120,000 acres of the richest land in Imperial Valley, which lies east and west of the new high-line canal just completed, and which no one owns. Ever since the water was turned into the Imperial Valley hundreds of persons have watched this land with eager eyes waiting for the time when the United States government would throw it open to entry to homeseekers.

In 1907 it was withdrawn from entry for reclamation purposes, the intention of the government at that time being to make it a part of the Yuma reclamation project. In 1910 it was absolutely withdrawn from all forms of entry.

The land includes a large acreage in the northern part of Imperial Valley, but the major portion lies on the eastern slope of the valley and is located both east and west of the new high-line canal which is just completed.

Three or four years ago a few of the wise ones of Imperial Valley realized that in time water must be put on this land and as a result numerous "sooners" made filings on the withdrawn lands. Some made sufficient improvements to cover the requirements of the government; others simply made a filing.

During the past year Water Company No. 5 decided to extend its sphere of operations and built a canal extending from the main canal of their system. This canal will place under water all of this land, none of which has been opened for settlement or filing.

APRIL ORDER.
On March 13, 1912, the Department of the Interior sent word to Register Frank Buren and Receiver Dudley Robinson of the local Land Office that this land would be thrown open for entry. The following telegram then issued:

"WASHINGTON, April 17, 1912.
"Register and Receiver, U. S. Land Office, Los Angeles:
"Order March 13th, restoring about 120,000 acres of land to entry in Imperial Valley, Calif., and letter of April 14th promulgating same are suspended, return same to this office. [Signed] "PROUDFIT, Asst. Comp."
No reason has ever been given by Assistant Commissioner Proudfit for the withdrawal of the order opening the land for entry and the local Land

AND VICTIM'S DIAMONDS; HOURS UNACCOUNTED FOR.

Two Hundred Thousand Dollars' Worth of Jewels, Thought to Have Been Procured by Slayers of Wealthy Man, in Vault—Mystery Still Enshrouds Movements After Lunch—Wife Locks Safe.

STREET, unrelieved by more than twenty-four hours incessant work on the part of practical detective branch of police department, assisted by a number of deputies under the personal charge of Sheriff Hensel, still search the cluttered little room in the Temple Block, where the late Mr. Taylor's safe was opened some time Wednesday afternoon, and claimed Charles E. Taylor, agent and capitalist.

Pendell, the murdered man's attorney, accompanied by Captain of Detectives and an official of the Temple Block, where the safe was opened, and the two safety deposit boxes were found yesterday afternoon. The safe was opened by a locksmith, and the contents were found to be a number of diamonds, which had been removed from the safe by the late Mr. Taylor. The diamonds were found in a small box, and the safe was found to be empty.

On the desk were several memoranda containing the names of individuals, possibly an appointment list. Some of the entries read: "Make up all bank books," "Paid the rent for July on June 23, eight days in advance," "Allen for insurance next week," "Lighthouse, Cap Brown, Clara, B. F. Allen, Fause, Della Burns, Whitehead, Jeff Wilson, Annie Vance, J. A. Henry, Colbert, O'Neil, B. Jones, James, O. Smith, C. B. Jones."

IN THE DRAG-NET. Dave Parton, who occasionally did work as a private detective for the Marsh agency and who was frequently in the company of Pendell, was arrested yesterday morning on suspicion, but released shortly afterwards.

Edward Porter was also arrested, but the chief evidence against him appeared to be a steel Billy which the police say they found in his pocket. Later in the day two negroes were caught in the drag-net thrown out by the police, but the activity with which the search for clues is continued indicates that they place little reliance upon the captures.

POSTAL MARATHON. MONROVIA, June 26.—The race for the postmasterhip of Monrovia has at length been decided, insofar as the endorsement of a local Democratic nominee is concerned, when G. W. Black was recommended yesterday by the Democratic County Central Committee, following the withdrawal of O. W. Bryant from the race.

Black's name will be sent to Washington, D. C., at once and action is expected to be taken in the matter within the next thirty days.

REPLICATED BOXES. Yesterday, Taylor and Pendell were found on the street, and the safe was found to be empty. The safe was found to be empty, and the contents were found to be a number of diamonds, which had been removed from the safe by the late Mr. Taylor.

FASCINATING TALK ON A FASCINATING ART.

Open House and Free Lessons Three Days in the Week, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, in Afternoon, Second Floor New "Times" Building.

BY ADMA WHITTAKER.

If it should be wet this afternoon, will it make any sort of difference to the size of the audience that will come to hear Mrs. Haffner-Ginger expound the virtues of the French omelette? I think not. It is my firm opinion that nothing short of an earthquake could keep us away.

Friday always was my lucky day. And I have been yearning to learn new ways of cooking eggs for years. Eggs are so very good for me, so nourishing and wholesome and all that sort of thing. Likewise they are often quite cheap. But if the cook knows her business the family should never be able to tire of eggs. Wherefore Mrs. Haffner-Ginger, the arch-cook, will devote this afternoon to cooking and discussing eggs in all their varied and possible charms.

There are many other grilles in which the barnyard egg can be made to assist at important functions and Mrs. Ginger will initiate us into many that we do not know, besides showing us how to improve upon those we do.

A fascinating exhibition of cooking utensils is being arranged for an early date and Mrs. Ginger is going to show us all the delightful and convenient uses to which the many clever devices should be put. There is no branch of the art of cookery that has not its inventors and engineers, and if we only knew what to ask for there is an implement to simplify every kind of work. Mrs. Ginger has often puzzled her audience with the cute little kitchen ladies, mixers, pans, tubs, blenders, grinders, etc., that help to make cooking so easy for her, and now we are to have the pleasure of meeting them all for ourselves.

I shall start saving up at once. I never could drag myself past a special sale of cooking utensils and if it means going without a new fall hat with a feather sticking straight out in front (I am sure that ought to be the next modish angle) I don't care.

 The first wedding of the new Cabinet has taken place with all due pomp and presence. The administration may now be considered fairly under way.

CONTAGION:
 America's most beautiful child has appeared within the last month in at least a dozen cities. This perfect-baby business is likely to end in a national riot at the next Mother's Congress.

WORK FOR EVERYBODY:
 Times are pretty good now. All that any man has to do in order to secure a fine position is to get a good aeroplane and offer his services to one of the Mexican armies. It makes no difference which army he joins as it will be the other army next week.

CAPTURED:
 A British militant broke a window and was jailed. Realizing that the chances of being caught and properly advertised were against her, the lady went to Scotland Yard to do her amending. As there was a detective in the window when she broke it, she was apprehended and duly came into fate.

STARVING THE SAILORS:
 Among the improvements introduced on the great steamer Imperator is that of underfeeding the crew. As soon as the ship was docked in New York there was a rush of about two hundred hungry men for the nearest restaurants. This was unusual in a German ship. However closely a Teuton may economize he is usually what Yankees call "a good provider."

BETTER SURRENDER:
 A gambling king in Chicago will start a market of his own in order to show up the high cost of living. The system better give him what he wants and be done with it. These professional gamblers never take a chance. They bet only on a sure thing. If O'Leary has started a market it is a thousand-to-one bet that he will before he puts his money up.

DEMOCRATIC PROCRATICISM:
 The big Bull Moose feels it to be his duty to affiliate politically with somebody. As the proverb runs, "We hate those most whom we have injured most," and the civic and other righteousness of the colonel has caused him to affiliate with the Democrats, in whose behalf he is canvassing portions of the State of New York. This affiliation he declares is temporary and for municipal purposes only.

HELPING EACH OTHER:
 Did you ever look at your horse and think how strong the two of you are in different directions? It may have even occurred to you as strange that your horse should be drawing you instead of you drawing it, but your horse is a better philosopher. It has never occurred to it that it should be stabling and feeding you. On the contrary it cheerfully draws carriage and plow and seeks the shelter and food of the stable at night with grateful limbs and good appetite and with no questions to ask. Life that moves evenly without too much prayer or blame and with plenty of co-operation is a mighty comfortable proposition and a rather rare one.

WINNING A HOME:
 Above all things we admire frankness. That is to say, we admire frankness in a man and adore it in a woman. We adore many things in a woman. Quite human, aren't we? Well, as strange as it may seem, New York holds two ladies we do not admire. Perhaps we should explain, in all justice to New York, that it tried to hold them. Really, they have escaped to Italy, and we do not care if they may there. Perhaps New York does not. These ladies were in Italy not long ago and, while on a trip in the country, they were robbed by a lone brigand. They say that if you beat a woman she will love you. This is true only where she loves you before you beat her, but it is not our business to correct ancient axioms. Anyhow, this brigand had his axioms down as pat as if he had been a graduate from a fashionable young woman's finishing school. Therefore, after robbing the rich American ladies, he proceeded to sing to them. They were so relieved at not being shot that they finally escaped with the idea that they had listened to a divine tenor. Now they have gone back to travel the same route with the hopes of capturing the man who captured them. They have been playing away at the thought of the stage loving so great a tenor. The chances are that he is a very bad man and a much worse tenor. What we would like to know is, which of the ladies will really succeed in marrying him?

THE HARBOR ADJUSTMENT.
 Announcement was made in the public service department of the Times yesterday that the Harbor Commission has asked the Pacific Electric and Southern Pacific Railway Companies to furnish as soon as possible complete inventories of their properties at the Los Angeles harbor as a basis upon which to work out details of the plan for the city leasing from the companies such properties as may be desirable in operating a municipal terminal at the harbor and to which all railroads shall have access upon equal terms.

This brings afresh to the public mind the importance of the steps that have been taken by the city and the railroads to open up work on the Los Angeles Harbor on such a scale that it may be in readiness to capture its due proportion of the traffic the Panama Canal will bring to the Pacific Coast. The possibilities of the new alignment in benefits to the city and also to the railroads are almost unlimited. Men who have given close study to the situation declare that this is a practical move towards making a world port of the Los Angeles Harbor.

Within possibly three months the first ships will pass through the Panama Canal. Contingent upon the success of their passage commercial traffic will begin through this connection of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, cutting off thousands of miles in the distance between the local port and important commercial centers of the world. Los Angeles Harbor must be in readiness to receive and accommodate this traffic from its very beginning, or content itself with witnessing the passing of the great procession of ships to San Francisco and northern ports on the Pacific Coast and then begin the hard struggle to change the set course of travel, which it is admitted would be a difficult task once such a course is definitely established.

The city was unprepared to meet the situation. The railroads having termini at the harbor were in a similar position. By united efforts of the city and the railroads the task can be accomplished.

In a spirit far different from that of old-time railroad officials, Paul Shoup, president of the Pacific Electric Railway Company and closely allied with the Southern Pacific interests, grasped the general situation with a broad view that caused him to realize the importance to the railroads, the city and the entire Southwest of having a great harbor business developed by co-operation at this port; and he undertook to actively co-operate with the Harbor Commission effectuating plans where the two main factors in harbor development may be utilized for the common good. The result was a conference with the city officials in an agreement for leasing to the city all railroad properties that may be deemed necessary for a proper and adequate municipal terminal, and the selling of such properties at a valuation to be determined by arbitration, should this be desired by the city.

The leasing plan will provide, as soon as details are worked out, for an almost immediate expansion of the Los Angeles Harbor on a scale that leaves no question of adequate facilities for traffic. It also paves the way for a future development that may at all times be equal to the demands of commerce made upon this port.

Not only does the city get the benefit of the complete control of the harbor and terminal facilities, while the existing railroads get the advantage of the increase in business that is sure to come under the new regime, but the way is opened also for the entrance of other railroads to Los Angeles and the harbor, thus bringing to it additional prestige and commercial advantage.

Through the agreement brought about between the city and the railroads members of the Harbor Commission declare that they will be ready, without question, to meet the demands of ship and railroad traffic as soon as the Panama Canal is opened. Although the city is in financial straits just at present, plans are matured for the handling of the harbor situation with as income that can be made available, so that there need be no delay on this account.

For the fiscal year that is just closing the City Council allowed the Harbor Commission an appropriation of $4488 for all purposes. The income at the harbor that went into the harbor revenue fund amounted to $10,789.57. The license fees amounted to $10,250, but this latter amount was not available for the use of the commission, ordinance provisions requiring that it go into the city's general fund.

For the new fiscal year, beginning July 1, the revenue from licenses and franchises at the harbor will be more than $24,000. The general harbor revenues that will go directly into the harbor revenue fund will be increased over those of the present year from 25 to 50 per cent.

The Harbor Commission desires the City Council to place it in a position where it may have the use of the entire harbor income. This would provide ample means to carry through as speedily as possible the leasing of the terminal properties and making the necessary outlays to provide classification yards, etc. An appeal will be made to the new City Council, immediately after its organization, for a change in the city ordinances so as to give the Harbor Commission complete control of the harbor revenues. In view of the greatness of the project at hand it appears that there is small room for argument against the change.

The Harbor Commission is taking hold of the newly-created situation with vigor and enthusiasm. It assures the public that the port of Los Angeles, with ample terminal advantages, will be ready for the first vessels that emerge from the Miraflores locks.

Fortunate Los Angeles, favored Southwest and farseeing railroad managers—it is this concurrence of circumstances that makes certain an early opening of a world port for Los Angeles.

MAKING HAY.
 Some people make hay when the sun shines. Others require clouds. The motion picture people regarded Wednesday as a special dispensation of Providence because the day was gray enough to permit them to dress in mackintoshes to do a food scene needed in one of their scenarios. All is not wet that waddles.

What's the Farmer Thinking?

SOCIALISTIC FALLACIES.

The two fundamental principles of Socialism are that property is robbery and that there should be co-operative ownership of all means of production.

Prudhomme makes no distinction between different kinds of property. All is robbery if possessed by an individual, and ceases to be robbery only when its ownership is turned over to the co-operative commonwealth.

Under a strict construction of the doctrine of Prudhomme, Tocpious would be forced to divest himself of his possessions and convey them to the municipality of Los Angeles. His business blocks, his town lots, his one-cent newspapers, his bank accounts, his home, his rebating money, his telephone stock, all would have to go to the Socialistic co-operative commonwealth.

Nor would his more exclusive personal belongings remain to him—
 "Down in Dahomey's sunny land,
 Mid social functions on the sand,
 A negro maid without a skirt
 May thrive as bride, or belle, or flirt."
 Darro, oh, let the world take note,
 Would wear a Socialist-owned coat;
 Trellises, orators of the West,
 Would wear a Socialist-owned vest;
 And Tocpious—for fame he itches—
 Would don co-operative breeches.

In advocating ownership of the machinery of production the Socialists make no distinction between a jack-knife and a flouring mill, or between a spade and a threshing machine, yet both are instruments of production.

When Socialism rules there will be no private brush for the artist, no private needle and shears for the tailor, no private sewing machine for the seamstress, no private frying pan for the cook.

The underlying doctrine of Socialism that property is robbery was tersely and comprehensively refuted by the late Judge Shafter, who said: "There is no dogma, no theory, nor device under the sun upon which men have been so universally agreed as that the right of property underlies all true religion, government and civilization. Without it, deprived of all motive to acquire beyond the most absolute necessity, man would sink into the savagism from which it has taken five thousand years to raise him. The justice of allowing unlimited acquisition is evidenced by the fact that the desire is universal. No natural inherent quality or passion is ours without there is lying behind it a benign purpose."

Prudhomme was vicious or insane, or both. Property is the incentive to exertion. It is the stimulant which is the preventive of idleness and its enjoyment is the just reward of honest industry. Its security is the very foundation of order. Take it away and society would relapse into that anarchy which is worse than despotism.

FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS.
 During the Presidential canvass last fall the Democratic organs and spellbinders severely criticized the Aldrich banking bill on the ground that it aimed to create a central bank that would have authority to regulate the expansion and contraction of banking credits and the issuance and withdrawal of currency. It was claimed that this country was too vast and its industries too diversified to make it desirable to establish such centralized control of the financial institutions of the land.

Yet the excess of authority which might have been established by the Aldrich bill was trifling compared with the absolute financial despotism proposed by the Federal reserve banking bill now pending before Congress. Under its provisions four men appointed by the President and three members of the President's Cabinet are to be the governing power. Substantially, it places unlimited despotic power in the hands of Mr. Wilson to govern the finances of the nation. No one man is wise enough or good enough to be invested with such power, and from his action in other matters it may well be doubted whether Mr. Wilson is fit to be trusted with it.

The power proposed to be vested in the regional Federal reserve banks, though very great, would probably be fairly exercised. Each of these banks would not be without knowledge of affairs in its own territory, and its directors would comprehend the course of business and both the strength and weakness of the national banks in that territory.

But to subordinate all the Federal reserve banks in forty-eight States to the autocratic direction of seven men in Washington appointed by the President—who would probably appoint them for political reasons—is a proposition that is not only a menace to the business of the country, but is hostile to the spirit of our government.

The Federal Reserve Board of seven Presidential appointees at Washington is to be authorized "to require a Federal reserve bank to reduplicate the paper of any other Federal reserve bank" and to establish each week, or as often as is required, a rate of discount which shall be mandatory upon each Federal reserve bank and for each class of paper."

Under this provision the Washington board appointed by the President might require the Federal reserve bank in Los Angeles to reduplicate the paper of a Federal reserve bank in Maine or Florida. It might arbitrarily transfer credits from one part of the country to another by forcing the movement of reserve money from Nevada to New York or from Louisiana to Idaho.

The provision for fixing from time to time a uniform rate of interest is another unjust and unwise provision. The rate of interest varies in different parts of the Union even as the price of commodities varies.

There are other objections that might be urged to the law, its administration might operate to create a congestion of money at New York or Chicago, or a scarcity of money at Los Angeles or St. Louis. The seven Democratic members of the Federal Reserve Board might favor the great Democratic cities to the disadvantage of Republican towns.

The bill is uncompromisingly at war with Democratic platform promises. But so is the free list in the Wilson-Underwood bill, and so is the approval of the bill exempting labor unions from prosecution for violation of the Sherman law. The President seems to take a strange delight in going back on the platform on which he was elected.

Hush, my child, out out the yelling; it will do no good, by durn; for I fear there is no telling when your mother will return. Father's here to rock the cradle and to sing a dulcet note; father's here, sweet child, to ladle paregoric down your throat. In your couch of wood and wattle, take your rest, my little sweet, drinking cow's milk from a bottle, while your mother, on the street, tells about the Women's Battle for their Sacred Rights, by Jingo; here's your little wooden rattle, here's your silver teething ring. Ah, this imitation nursing brings to baby's face a frown, while your mother's nobly cursing laws that keep the women down. Milk from can and milk from bottle, and the milk the druggists make, seem to paralyze your throat and to make your tummy ache; but my child, your mother's doing work too long undone, alas! She is storming round and shoeing poor male cyrters off the grass. With her woman out-fragrance rables she is frothing at the snout, and she can't take care of babies—that's for dad, the poor galoot. So, my dear, be bright and chipper; sing and smile as fine as silk; father's here to pour a dipper of the predigested milk.

THE U. S. BANKING SYSTEM.

BY G. W. BURTON.

It is exactly fifty years since the national bank law was passed by Congress, and since then there has been no material change made in our banking system. To be sure, the Bank of England has existed for 300 years practically in its present form, and the Bank of France for 100 years. But in each of these cases important changes in the banking laws have been made to keep the system down to date and in touch with conditions. The banking system of Canada, not centralized like that of England and France, but competitive like that of the United States, must, according to its law, be revised once in ten years.

The number of national banks in the United States is about 7300, out of a total number of financial institutions amounting to about 25,000. Thus, while the national bank system constitutes the backbone of our finances, it is a weak column to support such an enormous body as that composed of all the State banks, savings banks, trust companies and private banking institutions of the country.

The present banking system of the United States is so much better than that existing before the war in the organization of the national banks that there is no comparison between the two. The great advantage has come to the depositors who were in the habit of losing all their funds by the failure of the old wild-cat banks. Since the organization of the national banks the depositors of the whole country have suffered losses so small as to make but an infinitesimal decimal of all the deposits placed in the banks.

The national banking system as it exists is the freest banking system in the world, providing the easiest means of opening a bank, and in its intention safeguarding the country almost perfectly against any money trust or close concentration of the banking power. Any five citizens of good reputation and solvent in their financial condition can organize and open a national bank without let or hindrance, excepting that they must obtain the permission of the Comptroller of the Currency, an officer under the Secretary of the Treasury, charged with watching over the national banking system. He never refuses his assent to the opening of a national bank where the permission is asked by persons of honest repute in solvent condition, unless by the opening of such a new bank the proper well-being of one already existing should be put in jeopardy.

It only requires a capital of $25,000 to open a national bank in a small town or in a scattered community needing moderate banking facilities. Of the total number of national banks 2670 are organized with the smallest amount of capital. These small banks are scattered all over the United States.

The total capitalization of all the national banks on September 1, 1911, numbering 7301, amounted to $1,025,441,384.50.

These 7300 national banks are theoretically independent one of the other. The almost unrestrained facility for going into the banking business and the absolute independence of each bank from the influence of all the others would seem to make a money trust impossible. It is so, so far as the laws of the United States reach the subject.

These banks are divided into three classes, central reserve cities of which there are only three, New York, Chicago and St. Louis; forty-seven reserve cities, of which there are on the Pacific Coast seven, Seattle, Spokane, Tacoma, Portland, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Salt Lake. The other national banks are all known as country banks.

The national banking act provides that country banks shall hold in reserve 15 per cent of their outstanding liabilities, but may re-deposit 9 per cent of these reserves with banks in reserve cities. Thus the minimum for these small banks to have in cash is 6 per cent of their liabilities. The reserve city banks are required to hold a reserve of 25 per cent of their outstanding liabilities and may re-deposit half of this with banks in central reserve cities. That is, the actual cash in hand may be only 12 1/2 per cent of the bank's liabilities. The banking act prohibits any national bank from establishing or maintaining a branch anywhere.

The reserves held by banks are often misleading to the mind of the average non-banker. The country bank with its 12 per cent reserve may have half of this money in banks in a reserve city, and these banks may have half of their 25 per cent reserve in banks in central reserve cities. So if the layman takes the 12 per cent of the country banks and the 25 per cent of the reserve city banks, and the reserves of the central reserve banks and adds them all together he will be counting a good many dollars three times over.

It will appear from what has gone before that the absolute independence of each bank from all the others, as apparently contemplated by law, is somewhat mythical. The whole system of national banks is in practice closely intertwined one with the other by reason of this re-deposit of part of the reserve. The banks in the great central reserve cities have an intimate interest in the management and condition of the banks in the reserve cities and these again in the country banks. Yet there is no way on earth for any of these banks to learn anything about the other agencies or condition of any of the other banks except by interlocking directorates, which nullify the provision of the law prohibiting a bank from having branch banks.

The whole control over all the national banks of the country is in the hands of the Comptroller of the Currency, who calls for statements of the condition of each bank about five times a year and who maintains a corps of expert bank examiners under him, covering the whole country and having the right to investigate the condition of any bank at his pleasure.

From the facts stated above it will be seen that the national bank system only furnishes a part of our whole financial system. The Federal government is doing banking business in direct competition with the banks. It maintains in circulation about $200,000,000 of national currency, popularly known as "greenbacks," issued by the treasury and redeemable, as provided for by the scope of bank notes provided for by which the banks at present are allowed to issue notes to the full par value of the bonds deposited, provided these bonds sell at par or better, but no bank is permitted to issue notes in excess of its capital stock. The present amount of its capital stock is about $1,000,000,000.

The Federal government has to do with national banks, the management of all other financial institutions being left with the treasury and subtreasury, excepting that it has certain national banks depositories where the government keeps its deposits.

In some States the State banks are required to carry a certain amount of funds in reserve up to a full amount of the requirements of the national banks. In other States to a less amount and in such provision is entirely lacking.

Now there is the financial system of the country in brief outline. It is a lack of elasticity and of facility for protection against a panic. The government bonds fixed as an insurance on the bank notes that may be issued, the currency of the country is almost a quantity, no larger in times of great industrial activity than in times of depression and no smaller in times of depression than in times of great movement.

It is in an irrigation system in which with provision for the use of the amount of water in the midst of a downpour of rain as in the dry season, and with no more water than in the period when the river is full of flood water. Take another illustration: may be compared to a ball of twine, in which the strands are so loosely drawn for a mile along a road, that when the demand for a change in the laws of the country is to provide relief in our currency, furnishing a larger amount of activity to be resumed in times of depression, and at the same time means of co-operation between the merchants facilities for meeting demands incurred in carrying on foreign commerce, facility entirely wanting under our system.

Arrellanes' Delivery Hard to Solve.

Errors Figure in Each Run of Ragged Game.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

SACRAMENTO, June 26.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The baseball machine that Stan Berry, Pop Dillon and several thousand Los Angeles fans are figuring will win the Coast League pennant, fell to pieces today, as error after error piled up and helped the Sacramento Wolves to a 7 to 5 victory and the odd game of the first half of the series. To be sure the Wolves piled up just as many errors as did the Angels, but the local misuses were not so costly as the fatal blunders as were those of the visitors.

On top of all this, the Angels could not solve Arrellanes' delivery with any regularity for his left arm, which with the errors created, whereas, those caused to be a puzzle to the Wolves just as soon as his defense went to pieces.

ERRORS ARE COSTLY.

In one cause or another, errors figured in every run that was made during the matinee—there was not an earned run for either team, and the game was just about as ragged as this would suggest.

Howard opened by drawing a walk and took second on a sacrifice by Willie Moore. The ball into short right for what looked like an easy fly to Van Buren. But the wind brought the ball down on a spiral that sent it tumbling through the Deacon's outstretched hands. Maggert followed with a mighty triple to deep left, his second hit of the series, and Howard and Moore scored. On a hit and run play, Page was out, Young, to Ten-to the fourth the balloon went up. Moore was safe when Moore dropped Johnson's throw to the bag; Van Buren, least out; a short single better than Yester and Page; Moore dropped an other throw when Kenworthy dumped an intended sacrifice to Toser, and the bases were filled with none out. Hallinan proved himself the timely hitter with a drive that went for two bases when it got away from Maggert. Moore and Van Buren scoring. Tennant drove a sacrifice fly to Maggert, scoring Kenworthy. Hallinan was out trying to steal third. He singled to left center and took second when Arrellanes beat out a slow bouncer to Metzger. Bism took a lead and ran with a clear eye, stealing of third. Arrellanes trailing him to second. Young drove a vicious one at Page who set himself squarely for the ball and then let it go through him. Bism and Arrellanes scoring.

TOSER GETS TOUCHED.

In the sixth Toser was touched up for three short singles, but the nearest approach to an earned run was slipped in the bud when Metzger playing in for a hunt from Bism, caught Hallinan at the plate on an attempted squeeze play. In the seventh Lewis drew a walk, took second on Moran's sacrifice, and scored when Van Buren singled to center. Maggert let the ball go through him. Van Buren going to third. Kenworthy fouled out to Moore a short distance behind first, and the deacon ambled down the path for a steal of home when Moore held the ball and took his time about throwing to the plate.

In the eighth the wind got busy again and Lewis dropped an easy fly from Moore. Maggert's out and Metzger's single in center, put over the run. Kenworthy failed to do more than fly to Lewis when he tried to start a ninth-inning rally. But Goodwin hit better. Bismater hit Toser, Goodwin singled to left and took second when Howard registered a dinky single that beyond Tennant's reach. Elly tied to Van Buren who threw wide to second in trying for a double play, and the runners advanced to second and third. Moore took three balls and two strikes before he singled through Arrellanes, scoring Goodwin and setting Howard on third. With two down and two men on the paths, two runs were needed to tie the score. Maggert, a week ago, the leading hitter of the league, tied to Van Buren and the game was over. The score: LOS ANGELES.

DODGERS BREAK PHILLIES LONG WINNING STREAK.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—Philadelphia's winning streak was broken today, Brooklyn taking both games of a double-header, the first by 6 to 2 in fourteen innings and the second by 4 to 3. Rucker, who pitched in great style in the first game, was forced to leave the field owing to the heat after making a single in the thirteenth inning. Curtis finished out the contest and also twirled his team to victory in a duel with Alexander in the second.

Both games were marked by brilliant fielding. Manager Doolin had his right hand badly hurt by a foul tip in the second contest. The scores:

ATHLETES TAKE SENATORS DOWN.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Philadelphia took both ends of a double-header today, defeating Washington 11 to 3 and 10 to 3. The visitors continued their terrific hitting and batting Mullin from the box in the first game and Groom in the second. For the visitors Plank pitched a steady, winning game in the first, while in the second Bender, who relieved Brown after the locals had scored two runs, simply toyed with Washington. The only run scored on him was made by Alexander, who singled and was allowed to steal all the way home, the Indian deliberately holding the ball until after the runner crossed the plate. The scores:

Threatens to Handle Hat's Delivery Today.

Nothing to change the luck of the Venice Tigers, the manager of the team, said today. He said that the team's head may be cut off the breast of the uniform, but that he would handle the hat's delivery today.

"I'LL BEAT UP COULON ON THE STREET" KID W.

Little Williams in Despair Because Bantamweight Champion Has Again Cancelled Match—Breathes Fiery Vengeance—Coulon Should Be Given One More Chance, Then Forced to Retire.

By HARRY CARR.

Immediately wired the bantamweight champion asking him to put up $500 for a fight with the Kid Williams. The champion, however, has again cancelled the match, and the Kid Williams is in a state of despair. He says that he will beat up Coulon on the street, and that he will give Coulon one more chance, then force him to retire.

FORTUNE TO BE SPENT ON ROAD RACE LIGHTS.

BY BEST C. SMITH.

TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS is the amount that it will cost the entrants in the Panama-Pacific Road Race to start at night. This is the estimate of Max Purcell, expert car-buretor man, who does not agree with Bert Dingley in his estimate of the time that will be made in the great race. Purcell says 15 hours is closer to the time the winning car will make in the 500-mile race. He thinks the night start and the slow finish will make the run of 12 hours impossible. "Every driver in this race must spend $200 extra for the night start," said Purcell yesterday. "Generators, gas tanks, lamps, practice in the night preceding the race, the time that must be spent trying to accustom themselves to the lights and shadows in the mountains makes this night start an expensive proposition."

LE DOUX HOW TO BOX.

By DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Willie Ritchie and Joe Rivers both performed before audiences composed of the notables of the boxing game today, a fact which shows the tremendous interest being taken in the coming championship battle. More than a hundred people were in the gymnasium when the champion worked out and they were unanimous in the opinion that Ritchie is in far better shape for this contest than he was when he took the title from Volgaist.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Holding a large-scale grudge because his team had been defeated two straight games and stood a chance for another, Eddie Householder, manager of the San Bernardino team, today after he had essayed to pitch and been pounded for ten hits, abused the umpire, and being ordered off the field took his men with him, but thought better of it and allowed the game to go on. Long Beach won by a score of 11 to 7.

Staub Shoe Company and J. H. Gage, manager of the Pig 'n' Whistle Company. J. H. Wood of Wood Brothers was also present to look after the interests of Springfield merchants.

Though there were signs of friction during the fore part of the afternoon conference, these were patiently ignored away through the efforts of the various leaders, and at the last the proposed changes met with the nearly unanimous commendation of those present. One or two disgruntled property owners along Heliotrope Drive and Western avenue objected, however, to the plan to lengthen the time between cars in their district.

HE'S NOT KICKING.

"There will be two minutes added to the service from my district by routing certain cars via Bimbal instead of south on Vermont to Bimbal," stated former President Wheeler of the Board of Public Utilities, who was present as one of the representatives from the district bounded by Vermont, Sixth and Rampart. "I'm not going to kick, however, as I recognize that there is no perfect system of car routing."

"It suits me," stated John W. Mitchell, an independent. "I could propose some changes that would benefit me personally."

"We are not entirely satisfied, or at least some of us are not," stated J. D. Taggart, representing some of the property owners along Western avenue and Heliotrope Drive. "I don't know that we will take any further action. In other words we will sleep over the thing until tomorrow, then may urge some changes that will give us better service."

F. A. Carpenter, E. P. Tucker, H. E. Melles, F. P. Prendergast and D. L. Edmonds represented the Wilshire Improvement Club; J. D. Taggart, J. P. Zarger, Guy E. Russ, F. E. Wheeler, D. W. Edwards, Jr. and J. Ham Cline the districts bounded by Vermont, Sixth and Rampart, while J. J. Warrick, John W. Mitchell, J. J. Skinner and J. Norman were present as independents.

BOY SAVED.

FRESNO, June 25.—Dr. Foster of Hanford, made a quick trip to Los Angeles yesterday in his auto. A boy had been bitten by a rattlesnake, and a doctor was summoned from Los Angeles, after the boy had been taken seven miles to the city and it happened that all doctors were out of town. Dr. Foster was telephoned to at Hanford and made a quick trip in his auto, going the seven miles in eleven minutes, wrecking his machine. The boy was saved.

the manner in which bodies are lowered from the chapel to the basement of the building. The elevator, a flat platform for the accommodation of caskets descends in a dark shaft, the lower part of which is open. Von Der Lohe apparently miscalculated the distance to the floor and stopped the lift too soon. He stepped off the edge in the darkness and fell heavily about five feet to the cement pavement. Weighing 195 pounds, the shock was great, but he seemed to rally well and for the next week the case presented no complications.

When he suddenly became senseless Dr. Charles Fish, who was attending him, suggested that he might have suffered a slight stroke of apoplexy. As the days went on, however, this theory became untenable, according to his son, Arnold Von Der Lohe, who declares that his father has no tendency in that direction and has never been sick a day. Then an X-ray photograph of the unconscious man's skull was made, in the belief that there might be a blood clot on the brain, but none could be found.

While not yet able to sit up, Von Der Lohe is much improved and Dr. J. R. Haynes, who is now attending him, believes he will shortly be able to leave his bed.

PASADENA, June 27.—The reappearance on three successive nights of a mysterious Mexican in the vicinity of the coop of some blooded chickens at the palatial home of former Police Commissioner John V. Elliot, No. 1333 Wentworth avenue, in Oak Knoll, has caused drastic steps to be taken.
